

Public consultation on the transfer service from Sediane Littoral to Serene Sud proposed by Storengy Eni's response

Question 1 : Considérez-vous que le recours au service de transfert réduira la disponibilité des capacités interruptibles à la liaison Nord vers Sud ?

The service proposed by Storengy seems to be purely « contractual ». As a consequence we do not expect that it will affect the interruptible capacity on the link.

Question 2 : Considérez-vous que le service de transfert concurrencera les capacités de transport commercialisées par GRTgaz à la liaison Nord vers Sud ?

We consider that the possibility given by Storengy to transfer gas from Sediane Littoral to Serene Sud is an additional service, alternative to the use of capacity on the North-South link. In this view we think that this service will compete with the capacity on the North – South link.

Question 3 : Quels effets pensez-vous que ce service aura sur le bon fonctionnement du marché, en particulier sur la concurrence et les prix ? Pensez-vous que ces effets seront positifs ou négatifs ? Merci d'explicitier votre réponse.

Eni considers that the service proposed could have positive effects on the market functioning. In our view the service could facilitate the transfer of gas from North to South for shippers that have storage capacity on both sides of the interconnection. In fact the service proposed by Storengy could implicitly lead to an optimization in the use of interconnection capacity and reduce the spread between the gas price in the two markets.

Question 4 : Avez-vous d'autres remarques ?

We have no additional remark.
